Apprentice work in small public libraries should receive greater consideration. Apprentice help can be of mutual benefit in even the smallest library, if rightly planned. From the standpoint of the librarian such help is usually necessary and solves the problem of inadequate funds for paid assistants. From the standpoint of the apprentice, it is an opportunity to be tested out in her adaptability for library work, and for future training in the library school. In every community, there are high school graduates who seek such work. It is obvious that the librarian owes some return for this gratuitous or poorly paid service by planning as thorough a course of training in library routine as she is capable of giving. This is her duty towards her assistants and apprentices. Too few librarians appreciate the prestige that comes to a library from the careful training of assistants and apprentices. Many are left to stumble about and find things out...
