

Visions of Women

By Bell, Linda A.

Book Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: Springer, Berlin | Being a Fascinating Anthology with Analysis of Philosophers Views of Women from Ancient to Modern Times | People of Socrates' time were frequently aghast at the questions he would ask. Their responses were of the sort elicited by very dumb or extremely obvious questions: "Don't you know? Everyone else does." Socrates was hardly alone in his knack for asking such questions. Philosophers have always asked peculiar questions most other people would never dream of asking, convinced as the latter are that the answers were settled long ago in the collective "wisdom" of society, including questions about woman: should women be educated? should they rule societies? should they be subordinate in marriage? do women and men have the same virtues, or are there separate virtues for each? which of the differences between women and men are conventional, and which are natural? is there a woman's work? do women and men have different types or degrees of rationality? Philosophers of the most diverse periods have raised these questions and their answers were often quite creative, not merely reflecting the conventions and mores of their societies. With the publication...

READ ONLINE
[8.33 MB]

Reviews

The publication is easy to read through safer to comprehend. It is actually loaded with wisdom and knowledge. It has been printed in an extremely simple way and is particularly simply right after I finished reading through this pdf where it actually modified me, affecting the way I believe.

-- Ms. Clementina Cole V

This is the very best publication I have ever read until now. It is definitely simplified but shocks within the fifty percent of the pdf. You may like how the article writer created this pdf.

-- Rosario Durgan